DAWS BETTER BUILT AIMS TO BUILD HOPE THROUGH PARTNERSHIP WITH VICTORY JUNCTION GANG CAMP

PENSACOLA—Daws Better Built, the nations leader in aluminum tool boxes, announced today that it has become a sponsor of the Victory Junction Gang Camp, the most recent addition to Paul Newman’s family of Hole in the Wall Gang Camps. This latest camp-site, founded by NASCAR driver Kyle Petty and his wife Pattie, is scheduled to open this month in Randleman, North Carolina, and will exist completely on donations.

The mission of the Victory Junction Gang Camp is to provide children with chronic or life- threatening illnesses a camping experience that enriches their lives through great memories as well as provides them with a network of support as they face medical challenges.

Daws Better Built has agreed to make and supply all of the foot-lockers to be used at the new camp-site. “We could not be happier about being involved in such a wonderful program,” said Clint Daws, owner of Daws Better Built. “ Knowing that we can make and donate something that will help this program and change the lives of these children brings us great joy.”

The Randleman camp-site will have a NASCAR racing theme that will span 75 acres and consist of 36 buildings, including a dining hall, gym, pool, theater, therapeutic equestrian center, arts and crafts center, and 16 camper cabins.
